	Six 52-card decks are used in Blackjack and shuffled together before every hand is dealt, and the dealer receives a hole card. The dealer must hit on all totals of 16 or under, and stand on all 17s (including soft 17, a hand featuring an ace that totals either seven or 17). Should players hit Blackjack you will be paid at 3:2 odds. Regular non-blackjack wins are paid at 1:1 odds.
PLAYER BETTING OPTIONS
	There is a minimum bet in Blackjack, but more betting options become available as hands progress.
	Players can double down on any two-card hand, meaning you can double your initial bet, so long as you are committed to 'standing' after being dealt one additional card.
	Players can also split two cards if they are paired or of equal value. Therefore, if you are dealt king-queen, jack-ten, nine-nine or seven-seven you can create two hands for an additional wager of the same amount. Here are some additional rules on splitting:
	Players can split once for a total of two hands, except when dealt a pair of aces

	Aces may be split only once, after which players will receive only one card for each split hand
INSURANCE AND SURRENDER
	When playing at Atlantic City Blackjack tables, players can 'surrender' their hand and lose half their bet only after the dealer checks for Blackjack. Surrender is offered after all initial cards have been dealt.
	If you think the dealer has Blackjack, you can also buy 'insurance'. This means should the dealer reveal Blackjack; you'll still be paid 2:1 on your bet.
	The theoretical return to player (RTP) for Blackjack is 99.66%
	MALFUNCTION VOIDS ALL PLAYS AND PAYS
EVEN MONEY
	This Blackjack table offers an even money pay-out when players obtain a Blackjack and the dealer exposes an Ace. If the player accepts even money pay-out, the dealer will pay the player out before they check their hole card for a Blackjack, unlike winning insurance bets which are paid after the peek. Even money pay-outs are paid at 1:1 with the players stake returned.
